

The American Institute of Architects
Continuing Education Systems
AIA/CES Registered Provider Program Summary Handout

Provider: Metal Sales Manufacturing Corporation	Length: 1 hour
Program #: MSMC07	Credits: 1 LU hour
Program: Metal Panels 101	HSW: Yes

The course will give a general overview of the key aspects of the application, substrate selection, coating options, and fundamental benefits of metal roof and wall panels. This course is meant to give a baseline understanding of metal panels to those with limited experience and enhance and strengthen the knowledge base of those with experience with metal panels.

Learning Objectives: After completion of this course, participants will be able to

1. Understanding different panel materials and the benefits each offer.
2. Learn about the fundamentals of coil coatings.
3. Understanding the commonly specified metal roof systems and their applications.
4. Explore commonly specified metal wall systems including the advantages and disadvantages of each.
5. Gain insight into the benefits of metal panels in building design.

How Taught: The CES facilitator utilizes a PowerPoint presentation to provide an overview of the key aspects of Metal Panels. It will be an interactive session that encourages feedback and questions to help reinforce the learning objectives. The program concludes with a review of the objectives and time for additional questions.

A/V Needs: Electrical power, projector and screen for the PowerPoint slide presentation. The CES facilitator will supply the laptop.

Target Audience: Architects, specifiers, interior designers, owners and other design professionals. The ideal audience size can be 10-40 people. This program is basic and meets the needs of professionals at every experience level.

Facilitator Qualifications: All Metal Sales' CES facilitators have been trained on CES guidelines and presentation skills. In addition, they receive ongoing training in the field and are considered industry experts.

Cost: There is no cost to bring this into your firm or chapter meeting.